AN EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

There are a number of persons out of employment in every county—yet energetic men willing to work do not need to be. Those willing to work can make from $100 to $500 a month, working for us in a pleasant and permanent business. The amount our agents make varies, some make as high as $500 a month while others as low as $100, all depending upon the energy of the agent. We have an article of great merit. It should be sold to every householder, and pays over 100 per cent. profit. Each agent is paid $25 to $100, one agent in each county is paid $25 in two days, and cleared $250. An agent in New York made $350.00 in one day. Any man with energy enough to work a full day and will do this during the year can make from $2,000 to $6,000 a year. We only want one man in each county, and to him we will give the exclusive right as long as he continues to work faithfully for us. There is no competition, and nothing like our invention made. Parties having a large stock of goods, and who can obtain a general agency for ten counties or a State. Any one can make an investment of from $25 to $1,000 without the least risk, as our agents will show that those investing $25 can after a 30 days trial return the goods unsold to us and get their $25 back. They show that a general agent who will take ten counties and invest $250.00 can clear at least $1,000 a month. Charles Reade's True Woman. Walter Besant is the Gentleman's Magazine. Reade, in fact, invented the True Woman. That is to say, he was the first who found her. There have been plenty of sweet and charming women in stories, the patient, loving Amelia, the bouncing country girl, Sophy Western; the graceful and gracious ladies of Scott; the pretty dummies of Dickens; the insipid sweetness of Thackeray; the proper middle class (or upper class) girl of Trollope; the conventional girl of the better lady novelists. There have also been disagreeable girls, especially the bad style, detestable girl of the "woman's world" novelists, but Reade—the trousseau—has found the real woman. You will meet her on every page of all his novels. What is she? My friends, Columbus egg? What is not simpler. She is just exactly like a man, like ourselves, but with womanly tendencies. Like ourselves, she ardently desires love. She knows that it is the best—the absolutely best—thing the world has to give; that we are all born for love—man and woman alike; that this consummate and supreme blessing is to lose the best part of life. Since she desires all things to be good, and is forbidden to woo on her own account, she conceals her own thoughts, yet, from her own experience, she knows that it is quick at reading the thoughts of others. She is satisfied with nothing less than what she herself gives, which is all herself. Her reserve leads her, in the lower nature, to deceit and falsehood. Her devotion, which is part of her nature, leads her, also in the lower nature, to suspicion and jealousy. She is always in the house, and therefore her mind is apt to run in narrow grooves. The prodigality and wastefulness of men are things beyond her understanding. She is unversed in affairs of compromise. She is generally ill-educated, and therefore is incapable of forming a judgment; hence she is carried away by every wind of doctrine, as, for instance, in matters ecclesiastical, knowing nothing of the early church or its history, she believes the poor little Ritualist curate, who knows indeed, no more than herself; or in art, where, for want of a standard, she is led astray by every fad and fashion of the day, and worships ad-faced fatness with rapture; or in dress, where, her taste being uncultivated, she puts on whatever is most hideous and unbecoming, provided it is worn by everybody else.

This is the woman whom Charles Reade presents to us; she is not at all events insipid; no real women are; if she is artificial, he shows the real woman beneath. What he loves most is the woman whom fashion has not spoiled; the true, genuine woman, with her natural passion, her jealousy, her devotion, her love of admiration, her fidelity, her righteous wrath, her maternal ferocity, her narrow faithfulness, even her audacity of falsehood when that can serve her purpose, and her perfect abnegation of self.

Old Days in New York. From the New York Evening Post.

"It was necessary in those good old times," said the octogenarian merchant, "to have in every family a tinder-box and steel, and in the morning the tinder was too damp to be ignited, the servant-girl had to run to a neighbor who was an early riser and borrow a shovel full of live coals. The only matches in use were wood shavings that had been curled up and dipped in brimstone, and they were lighted from a tinder-box; even locofoco matches had not come into existence. When by and by the latter appeared their popularity was greatly increased by a political incident. At a meeting in Tammany hall, Isaac L. Varian in the chair, and myself among the vice-presidents, there was a slight row; a rush was made to remove the officers, which being unsuccessful, the lights were put out to force an adjournment. An active Democrat proceeded immediately to light up by using locofoco matches, which he had taken from his pocket. By the aid of these matches business was resumed (although some of us the next day had to buy new suits of clothes) and in a short time the whole Democratic party was known as Locofocos. A tinnian, who had a large store on Nassau street, near Maiden Lane, was the first New Yorker to make a display of illuminating his premises with gas, and hundreds of persons visited his place every evening to view the brilliant light. The first gas company erected its works at the southeast corner of Grand and Orange streets. In earlier days it was customary for smokers of fine Havana cigars to carry a burning glass in their pockets and when the sun shone to light them with this instrument, a method known in some quarters as the "Benjamin Franklin electric lighting." In those days housekeepers who used the brackish water furnished by the Manhattan water works at the corner of Reade and Elm streets, were compelled to pour the inside of their tea kettles about once a month, in order to remove the coating formed by the boiling of the water."

Diddle's Gerymander. Elias S. Stover, a Republican, is a very large proportion of the colored voters of South Carolina have been thrown into a single district, and Messrs. Mackey, Smalls and Lee, who have heretofore been standing candidates for Congress in separate districts, are now competitors in the same field. They were each candidates before the Seventh district Republican convention, which has just adjourned, and on the 25th ballot Mackey obtained the nomination. His rivals charge bribery and corruption, and propose to run anyway, making a triangular Republican fight. The Democrats have not been expected to put up a candidate at all, but should the division among the Republicans continue the Bourbons will undoubtedly enter the race and probably secure the prize themselves.
